

Thank you.

In June of 1959, Louie suffered a heart attack. But he continued to tour extensively. Then, in 1964, he scored a surprise hit with the title song from a musical that had opened on Broadway in that same year with one of the great musical stars of all time - Miss Carol Channing - in the lead role. Have you got a guess as to the name of the musical? Right - Hello, Dolly.

And so, here we go with the song that Louie recorded and which reached #1 in May of that year and earned him a Grammy award for best vocal performance. Here's "Hello, Dolly!"
