

Thank you.

Each time we play for you, we like to showcase a noted artist of yesteryear. Tonight, we're going to highlight a singer, film and TV star, and comedian who was nicknamed the "King of Cool." He was a member of the "Rat Pack" and of Italian descent. Anyone have a guess as to who this is? Right - Dean Martin.

During his lifetime, Dean recorded more than 60 singles, produced nearly 50 albums, and starred in nearly 60 movies. He has three stars on the Hollywood Walk Of Fame and in 2001 was honored with a posthumous Grammy award for Lifetime Achievement. In 2009, he was inducted into the Hit Parade Hall of Fame.

For our first Dean Martin hit, we'll present the story of a girl who went back to Italy to learn how to do a Spanish dance - the Mambo. The song title? Well, it's a combination of two cultures - "Mambo Italiano." Let's see what she has to say.
