

Thank you. Now, we'll pick up the tempo a little bit with a song that was written way back in 1926 and since then has been recorded by a whole hosts of artists including Frank Sinatra, Judy Garland, Peggy Lee, and Dean Martin. It was also featured in the movies "Pete Kelly's Blues" and "Sleepless In Seattle." Did any of you see either of those movies? (Response)

This is a song about a bird that was very common back in Nebraska where I hail from. It was completely black and slightly larger than a robin. Anyone have a guess as to the name of the bird? (Response). You got it - a blackbird. What song do you remember that had the word "blackbird" in its title. (Response). Right again!

So, here's our version of "Bye Bye Blackbird."
