

Thank you very much.

It's time for another waltz, and this one goes way back to 1927. The composer was someone no one has ever heard of, but the song has been a staple of barbershop quartets forever. Originally recorded by Gene Austin, more recent recordings have been produced by artists such as the Percy Faith Orchestra, Pat Boone, and Perry Como.

Here's a rather melancholy song about a man who is only left to remember the "Girl Of My Dreams."
