

Thank you. Thank you very much.

We're really going to go back in the past for this next song. It was written back in 1864 as a poem by a Canadian, George Washington Johnson. Years later, it was set to music and recorded by such artists as Perry Como, Gene Autry, and Bing Crosby,

I'll sing it for you now. Here we go with the beautiful folk song - "When You And I Were Young, Maggie."
