

Thank you. Thank you very much.

There were many songs written during the Civil War. Our next selection originated in the blackface minstrel shows of the 1850s and during the Civil War was adopted as the de facto anthem of the Confederacy.

You've all heard this song many times, so we decided to give it a little twist from the way it's normally played and sung. Here's our version of that great Civil War classic - "Dixie."
