

Thank you. How many of you saw the movie “Groundhog Day”? You’ll remember that it was about a weatherman played by Bill Murray who got stuck in time in Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania.

In the movie, there was a song playing in the background everytime we visited the February 2 celebration of groundhog day in that community. The song was written in 1942 and first recorded by the Andrews Sisters. Since then, a whole host of polka bands have made it a solid selection in their repertoire.

Your feet are soon going to be tapping as we play “The Pennsylvania Polka.”