

Thank you.

In 1949, a young blonde starlet with big eyes and a rather raspy voice introduced our next song in a Broadway play entitled "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." Would anyone care to guess who this blonde was? Right - Carol Channing.

Four years later, another blonde bombshell sang the song in the movie. Who was that? Right - Marilyn Monroe. Now, for the test: What was the name of the song? Right - "Diamonds Are A Girl's Best Friend." It ranks #12 on the list of all-time great movie songs.

Here's our version of this classic.
