

Thank you very much.

This next song was written back in 1963 and immediately became a hit for the great Andy Williams, who just passed away a few years back. The world is a smaller place without his presence.

The song is a celebration and description of activities associated with the Christmas season, focusing primarily on get-togethers between friends and families.

I totally agree with the title of this song. It says that Christmas is the “Most Wonderful Time Of The Year.”
