

Thank you very much.

Our next selection was written way back in 1864 by Benjamin Hanby in the town of New Paris, Ohio. It is the second oldest secular Christmas song, outdone only by Jingle Bells. Gene Autry's rendition is the most famous, but we liked the jazzed up version by Andy Williams a little better.

So here's our version of the story of the gentleman in red who parks his reindeer and sled on our roofs - "Up On The Houstop."
